MOKENA BAND TO BE FEATURED ON MEMORIAL DAY.

For the first time since its organization the new Mokena school band will play at a regular patriotic program. The band will play at the Memorial Day exercises to be held in the Mokena public school auditorium on Monday morning, May 31 at 10:30 am.

The band has made splendid progress and will be well worth hearing. They also have their new uniforms and will appear in full uniform.

The message of the day will be delivered by Rev. H. R. Zager pastor of the Peotone Evangelical church. He is said to be a very good speaker and will have an inspiring message.

The school children will sing a number, "America the Beautiful". The Wm. Martin post VFW has also been invited to participate in the services.

Rev. Theodore Haelele pastor of the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena will offer the invocation.

Editor Wm. Semmler will read the roll call of the departed veterans of this vicinity.

Everyone is heartily invited to attend these exercises.

The sixteen soldiers graves in the St. Mary, St. John and the Old Cemetery will be decorated with flags and flowers before the exercises.

Considerable Interest Shown In Orland Library

Reports from the recently established public library indicate that considerable interest is being shown in both the book and magazine sections, and that the children's story hour on Saturday afternoons is decidedly popular.

However it is believed that there may still be some misapprehension on the part of residents of the village and its environs concerning the definitely public character of the library. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that the library is for the entire community. Moreover, it should be understood that the number of new books received from outside sources largely depends upon the general use of the library by residents of the community and the surrounding country.

There is a good choice of recent magazines which may be taken out upon the same basis as books. There is, of course, no charge upon the lending of any book or magazine excepting a fine of two cents a day upon books kept longer than two weeks without renewal.

According to the librarian there have been some requests for scientific magazines such as Popular Science and Popular Mechanics. Contributions of these and all other magazines are highly acceptable.

Mokena School Baccalaureate And Commencement

Baccalaureate services will be observed for the graduating classes of the Mokena high school and eighth grade in the Methodist church, Sunday night, May 30, at 8:00 P.M. Rev. Charles R. Knight, minister of the Methodist church, will give the Baccalaureate sermon, "The Use of Obstacles," assisted by Rev. Haelele of the Evangelical church, who will read the Scripture and offer the invocation. Special numbers will be a solo, "My Task," sung by Mrs. Haelele, and "Holy Spirit, Truth Divine," sung by the Junior High School Chorus.

Prof. Tom Clare, professor of sociology, Elmhurst college, Elmhurst, Illinois, will be the speaker for the Commencement exercises, Wednesday, June 2, at 8:00. The program is as follows:

Processional — "Coronation March" Invocation — Rev. T. M. Haelele. Song — "Gondoliera" — Junior High Chorus.

Song — "Londonderry Air" — Junior High Chorus.

Introduction of the Speaker — Rev. T. M. Haelele.

Address — "What Kind of a Citizen Will You Be?" — Prof. Tom Clare.

Presentation of Classes — Prin. G. W. Dunn.

Presentation of Diplomas — Ona E. McGovney.

Benediction — Rev. Chas. P. Knight.

Those graduating Wednesday night from the sophomore class are: Fern Cleverger, Donald Kohl, Roy Kohl, Blenda Monson, June Schoeneck and David Tierney.

Those graduating from the eighth grade are: Robert Benson, Robert Clark, Everett Cleverger, Melvin DeValk, Mary C. Marti, Hans Mueller, Marie Rinke, Maxine Schoen, Evelyn Schult, Clara Stankus, Edwin Wichter, Fremont Warning, Frederick Whitlark, and Pearl Werner.

Former Home Town Boy to Address Frankfort Alumni

We often read and hear stories about the home town boy who made good, and we have such an example right in our own locality. Wm. Green will be well remembered by residents of Frankfort as a lad who attended the local public school and who made his home with his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Green. Mr. Green, since leaving Frankfort following his graduation from the Frankfort school in 1931, has made a mark for himself in the world and is now news commentator on radio station WCFL under the radio name of Monte Randall.

He will come back to the old home town of Frankfort next Tuesday evening, June 1st when he will give an address at the Frankfort Public School Alumni banquet which will be held in the church parlors of the St. Peter's Evangelical church, commencing at 7:30 p. m. D.S.T.

It is interesting to note that this is the only grade school alumni in this community and it has thrived for the past 28 years which really is a good record and one to be proud of.

At present there are over 200 members on the roster of the Alumni and no membership dues are charged. The only means of raising money to sponsor the annual banquet for the in-coming class is by giving a play or a dance once a year and charging a small fee.

This year, the Alumni has arranged an interesting program which, in fact, promises to be something extraordinary so that the members will have something to look forward to.

The committee in charge has been fortunate to secure good talent, such as Ralph Lovell, who has appeared on the National Barn Dance at the Eighth Street Theatre in Chicago and other WLS Home Talent programs.

There will also be an expert xylophonist on the program. Captain Harr of the Glenwood Manual Training School will be heard in several numbers.

By popular request, a male quartet consisting of Arnold Bauer, James Funk, Arthur Lambrecht and Clarence Pearson and accompanied by Miss Lillian Collins, all of Chicago Heights, will entertain this group as they have in other years.

Attorney Walter Herschbach will act as master of ceremonies, Arthur Lambrecht will lead the community singing and there will be short talks by Alvin Hill, principal of the Frankfort public school and some of his pupils.

Mrs. Walter Harnack is the president of the Alumni for this year and will give the address of welcome.

Quite a number of the members of the Alumni have made distinguished records for themselves in various walks of life. Walter Herschbach has made quite a record in the legal world, Arthur Lambrecht has also made an outstanding record in the musical world and there are others of whom we are not aware of their achievements at this time.

Baseball Dance

The Tinley Park Baseball team is sponsoring a dance June 12 in the new Meister Brau dance hall formerly the Saenger hall in Tinley Park. Music will be by Bob Phillips and his Florida Ambassadors. Everyone is invited to attend. Proceeds will go to the Tinley Park baseball team.

Mokena B. P. A. To Meet Thursday

The Mokena Band Parents Association meeting which was to have been held next Wednesday evening, has been changed to next Thursday evening because of the commencement exercises on Wednesday night.

Tinley Garden Club To Hold Flower Show

An event which will be of special interest to everyone interested in flowers and to the public in general has been the annual flower show sponsored by the Tinley Park Garden club. Choicest blooms from local gardens are shown and awarded prizes.

On Thursday, June 10th the Garden club will sponsor their eighth annual Flower Show in the Tinley Park School Auditorium.

At the last meeting held at the home of Mrs. R. J. Hug arrangements were made for the show.

Mrs. Minnie Mager and Mrs. Florence Anderson are in charge of the entries. Mrs. Selma Duff is in charge of the program to be given in the evening and promises a good program.

Mrs. Chas. F. Nielsen treasurer of the club is in charge of admissions. The Tinley Park business men, clubs and all individuals are invited to have displays.

Be sure to watch next weeks paper for further particulars. Don't forget the date June 10.

To Those of Foreign Birth

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF—To become a full citizen of the United States, the country in which you have chosen to live.

None of us care for these words—Foreigner, Alien, Outsider—and yet, that is what the 6 millions of people in America are, who have not yet claimed the privileges and benefits of citizenship; folk who have not their Federal papers which make them Naturalized members of the big American Family.

To help you to these privileges, your government, thru the WPA Adult Educational Program, offers you FREE classes, Monday, Tuesday and Friday of each week from 6:30 to 9:30 in the Tinley Park public school.

Reading, writing, spelling in easy English is taught also. The instructor, Robert B. Falk, would like to meet all non-citizens at these hours. Also the classes are open to anyone wishing to brush up on these studies.

Because of Decoration Day, no class will be held MONDAY EVENING.

Tinley School Band Has New Director

The Tinley Park school band now has a new band master. Mr. Peters of Joliet is the new band master, succeeding R. B. Wight of Joliet who resigned a week ago.

Mr. Peters comes highly recommended by Mr. Archie McAllister the well known director of the famous Joliet Township high school band.

Blooming Hawthorn Attracting Visitors

Every year about this time many people from this section journey to Blue Island to see the beautiful English Hawthorne tree in bloom in the yard of L. W. Rauch at 2545 Grove street in Blue Island. Mr. Rauch says the tree is in full bloom and will be at its best this Sunday.

A natural spring is supplying water for the Rock Garden on Mr. Rauchs place. This spring is said to have been the first water supply of Blue Island and the Indians used to perform ceremonies at this spring.

Everyone is invited to visit the Rauch place and see the beautiful blooming Hawthorne tree.

New Lenox School Band To Play at Orland

The New Lenox school band is to play at the Memorial Day exercises and parade to be held by the Orland Park Legion Post this Sunday, May 30th in Orland Park. The parade will form in the school grounds at 1:30 p. m. sharp and march up 143rd street to the community flag pole across from the Wabash depot. Here the Memorial Day exercises will be held. Harold L. Goodenow, a retired old army man will deliver the Memorial Day address.

4th of July Com. Meets June 10th

The meeting of all the committees on arrangements for the 4th of July celebration sponsored by the school bands of Frankfort, Mokena, New Lenox and Tinley Park will be held in the Frankfort public school on Thursday evening June 10 instead of June 1st as had been announced at the last committee meeting which was held in Tinley Park. The meeting will convene at 8 D.S.T.

Walther League To Hold Rally at Tinley

The spring rally of the South suburban zone of the Walther League will be conducted in Trinity Lutheran church, Rev. M. Frick pastor. The meeting will be called to order at 2:30 p. m. with Mr. Edwin Becker of Matteson in charge. After the business meeting lunch will be served in school of the local society. The evening will be spent in entertainment in the auditorium of the public school in Tinley Park. About 250 young people will attend.

Vocational Guidance Classes At Tinley Park

For our high school folk and all young people in this group, are offered thru the WPA, Courses in Engineering in its various branches, business training, etc. Do you young folk desire such a class in Tinley Park. It is yours FREE for the asking, if enough of you are interested to make a class.

I will be glad to counsel with you, Robert B. Falk

Women's Union To Present Show

A amateur show will be sponsored by the Fourth Wheel of the St. John Evangelical Women's Union of Mokena on July 9th. Cash prizes will be awarded for the three best amateurs. Anyone wishing to enter the show, please get in touch with Mrs. Immanuel Marti, Chairman.

Hartwig-Woodcock

The past week a marriage license was issued to Edward Hartwig of Tinley Park and Miss Katherine Woodcock. The latter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Woodcock of Mokena.

Memorial Services At New Lenox Mon.

The annual Decoration Day exercises will be held in the New Lenox school auditorium on Monday morning, May 31st. A parade will proceed to the Maplewood cemetery where the soldiers graves will be decorated with flowers and flags by the school children.

Carnival Big Attraction Coming To Tinley Park

Preparations are under way for the big carnival which the Tinley Park Legion Post will sponsor on June 18, 19 and 20. The Tinley Park Business Men's Association, the various clubs and civic organizations of the community will operate booths. There will be all kinds of entertainment.

On the opening day, an open-air band concert will be held in the evening.

A Ferris Wheel, Merry-Go-Round and a Tilt-A-Whirl will provide plenty of exciting rides for young and old.

The closing day will be climaxed with a big parade in which Legion bands, drum and bugle corps will participate. There will be floats by various concerns and organizations and prizes will be awarded.

Watch for more particulars each week. Three full gala days and nights are coming so be sure to attend and share in the fun.

KIN OF FRANKFORT ATTORNEY FIGURE IN CHI. HOLDUP

Attorney F. A. Krusemark brother of Attorney A. H. Krusemark of Frankfort and Fred Lochbihler figured in a holdup in Chicago Monday night.

A bandit said "This is a stickup" as Mrs. Frank Lazear left the apartment building on the Schiller St., side to meet her husband who was waiting in an automobile.

Mrs. Lazear screamed and the robber raced to the front of the building where Attorney F. A. Krusemark of 1400 Lake Shore drive was alighting from the car of Fred Lochbihler 1315 S. Grove avenue, Berwyn.

Waving Krusemark away from the car the bandit got in beside Lochbihler. Also in the car were Mrs. Angeline Krusemark, the attorney's wife and her two nieces Miss Harriet Covert 21 years old and Miss Lorrain Covert 20 years old.

Forcing Lochbihler to drive away the bandit commanded the women to lie down. Lorrain hesitated and he struck her with the back of his hand. At Huron and Dearborn st. the robber took $5 from Lochbihler and $1 from Lorrain and fled on foot.

Lochbihler is quite well known in Frankfort and Tinley Park having operated picture shows in both places a couple of years ago.

Manhattan Pastor To Give Frankfort Memorial Address

Plans have been completed for a big Memorial Day program on Monday, May 31st. Following the usual ceremony of decorating the soldiers graves in the Pleasant Hill cemetery the Memorial Day program will be held in the school grounds commencing at 2 o'clock. Rev. Harold Youngberg of Manhattan will deliver the Memorial Day address. The Frankfort school band will furnish the musical program.

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will serve refreshments on the school grounds. In the evening the Ladies Aid of the St. Peter's Evangelical church will serve their annual Memorial Day supper in the church parlors.

Men Serve As Waiters At Mothers Banquet

A Mother and Daughter banquet was sponsored by the St. John Brotherhood in the parlors of the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena Wednesday night. The members of the Brotherhood served as waiters and did a good job of it. A very interesting program was also presented. About 180 guests were present.

Mokena's Opening Ball Game Sunday

The first home baseball game of the season in Mokena will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30, May 30 on the Hayden diamond in Mokena.

The contending teams will be the Mokena team and the Jolly Club team of Joliet. A good attendance is desired. All ball fans are cordially invited to attend and bring your friends.

THE NATION'S DEAD

Four hundred thousand men,
The brave, the good, the true,
In tangled wood, in mountain glen,
On battle plain, in prison pen,
Lie dead for me and you!
Four hundred thousand of the brave
Have made our ransomed soil their grave.

For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you.

The GARDEN MURDER CASE

"The disconnected buzzer wires gave me the answer this morning," explained Vance. "Her scheme was both simple and bold. She knew that, if she followed Swift upstairs before the big race, she would have no difficulty in enticing him into the vault on some pretext or other—especially in view of the fact that he had shown a marked interest in her. Her intention was to shoot him in the vault, just as she did, and then go into the study and shoot you. Swift's body would then have been placed in the study, with the revolver in his hand. It would appear like murder and suicide. As for the possibility of the shot in the study being heard downstairs, I imagine she had tested that out beforehand under the very conditions obtaining yesterday afternoon. Personally, I am of the opinion that a shot in the study could not be heard down here during the noise and excitement of a race broadcast, with the study door and windows shut. For the rest, her original plan would have proceeded just as her revised one did. She would merely have fired two blanks out of the bedroom window instead of one. In the event that you should have guessed her intent when she entered the study, and tried to summon help, she had previously disconnected the wires of the buzzer just behind your chair at the desk."

"But, good Lord!" exclaimed Floyd Garden in an awed tone. "It was she herself who told Sneed about the buzzer being out of order."

"Precisely. She made it a point to be the one to discover that fact, in order to draw suspicion entirely away from herself." Vance paused. After a moment he went on.

"As I say, her plan had to be revised somewhat because Doctor Garden had not returned. She had chosen the Rivermont Handicap as the background for her maneuvers, for she knew Swift was placing a large bet on the race—and if he lost, it would give credence to the theory of suicide. In a way, Doctor Garden's absence helped her, though it required quick thinking on her part to cover up this unexpected gap in her well-laid plans. Instead of placing Swift in the study, as she originally intended, she placed him in his chair on the roof. She carefully wiped up the blood in the vault so that no trace of it remained on the floor. A nurse with operating-room experience in removing blood from sponges, instruments, operating table and floor, would have known how. Then she came down and fired a blank shell out of the bedroom window just as soon as the outcome of the race had been declared official. Substantiating suicide."

"Of course, one of her chief difficulties was the disposal of the second revolver—the one she fired down here. She was confronted with the necessity either of getting rid of the revolver—which was quite impossible in the circumstances—or of hiding it safely till she could remove it from the apartment; for there was always the danger that it might be discovered and the whole technique of the plot be revealed. Since she was the person apparently least under suspicion, she probably considered that placing it temporarily in the pocket of her own topcoat, would be sufficiently safe. It was not an ideal hiding-place; but I have little doubt that she was frustrated in an attempt to hide it somewhere on the roof or on the terrace upstairs, until she could take it away at her convenience without being observed. She had no opportunity to hide the revolver upstairs after we had first gone to the roof and discovered Swift's body. However, I think it was her intention to do just this when Miss Weatherly saw her on the stairs and resentfully called my attention to the fact."

"But why," asked Professor Garden, "didn't she fire the revolver upstairs in the first place—it would certainly have made the shot sound more realistic—and then hide it in the garden before coming down?"

"My dear sir! That would have been impossible, as you can readily see. How would she have got back downstairs? We were ascending the stairs a few seconds after we heard the shot, and would have met her coming down. She could, of course, have come down by the public stairs and re-entered the apartment at the front door without being seen; but in that event she could not have established her presence down here at the time the shot was fired—and this was of utmost importance to her. When we reached the foot of the stairs, she was standing in the doorway of Mrs. Garden's bedroom, and she made it clear that she had heard the shot. It was, of course, a perfect alibi, provided the technique of the crime had not been revealed by the evidence she left in the vault. . . . No. The shot could not have been fired upstairs. The only place she could have fired it and still have established her alibi, was out of the bedroom window."

He turned to Zalia Graem.

"Now do you see why you felt so definitely that the shot did not sound as if it came from the garden? It was because, being in the den, you were the person nearest to the shot when it was fired and could more or less accurately gauge the direction from which it came. I'm sorry, I could not explain that fact to you when you mentioned it, but Miss Beeton was in the room, and it was not then the time to reveal my knowledge to her."

There was another brief silence in the room.

"But, Mr. Vance," put in Doctor Siefert, frowning, "your theory of the case does not account for the attempt made on her own life."

Vance smiled faintly.

"There was no attempt on her life, Doctor. When Miss Beeton left the study, a minute or so after Miss Graem, to take my message to you, she went instead into the vault, shut the door, making sure this time that the lock snapped, and gave herself a superficial blow on the back of the head. She had reason to believe, of course, that it would be but a short time before we looked for her; and she waited till she heard the key in the lock before she broke the vial of bromine. It is possible that when she went out of the study she had begun to fear that I might have some idea of the truth, and she enacted this little melodrama to throw me off the track."

Siefert had leaned forward and was studying Vance closely.

"As a theory, that may be logical," he said with skeptical gravity. "But, after all, it is only a theory."

Vance shook his head slowly.

"Oh, no, doctor. It's more than a theory. Miss Beeton herself—and in your presence—gave the whole thing away. Not only did she lie to us, but she contradicted herself when you and I were on the roof and she was recovering from the effects of the bromine gas—effects, incidentally, which she was able to exaggerate correctly as the result of her knowledge of medicine."

"But I don't recall—"

Vance checked him. "Surely, doctor, you remember the story she told us. According to her voluntary account of the episode, she was struck on the head and forced into the vault; and she fainted immediately as the result of the bromine gas; then the next thing she knew was that she was lying on the settee in the garden, and you and I were standing over her."

"That is quite correct," Siefert said, frowning at Vance.

"And I am sure you also remember, doctor, that she looked up at me and thanked me for having brought her out into the garden and saved her, and also asked me how I came to find her so soon. If she had been unconscious, as she said, from the time she was forced into the vault to the time she spoke to us in the garden, how could she possibly have known who it was that had found her and rescued her from the vault? And how could she have known that I found her soon after she had entered the vault? . . . You see, doctor, she was never unconscious at all; she was taking no chances whatever of dying of bromine gas."

Siefert relaxed and leaned back in his chair with a faint wry smile.

"You are perfectly right, Mr. Vance."

"But," Vance continued, "even had Miss Beeton not made the mistake of lying to us so obviously, there was other proof that she alone was concerned in that episode. Mr. Hammle here conclusively bore out my opinion. When she told us her story of being struck on the head and forced into the vault, she did not know that Mr. Hammle had been in the garden observing everyone who came and went in the passageway. And she was alone in the corridor at the time of the supposed attack. Miss Graem, to be sure, had just passed her and gone downstairs; and the nurse counted on that fact to make her story sound plausible, hoping, of course, that it would produce the effect she was striving for—that is, to make it appear that Miss Graem had attacked her."

Vance smoked in silence for a moment.

"As for the radio-active sodium, doctor, Miss Beeton had been administering it to Mrs. Garden, content with having her die slowly of its cumulative effects. But Mrs. Garden's threat to erase her son's name from her will necessitated immediate action, and the resourceful girl decided on an overdose of the barbitol last night. She foresaw, of course, that this death could easily be construed as an accident or as another suicide. As it happened, however, things were even more propitious for her, for the events of last night merely cast further suspicion on Miss Graem."

"From the first I realized how difficult, if not impossible, it would be to prove the case against Miss Beeton; and during the entire investigation I was seeking some means of trapping her. With that end in view, I mounted the parapet last night in her presence, hoping that it might suggest to her shrewd and cruel mind a possible means of removing me from her path, if she became convinced that I had guessed too much. My plan to trap her was, after all, a simple one. I asked you all to come here this evening, not as suspects, but to fill the necessary roles in my drama."

Vance sighed deeply before continuing.

"I arranged with Sergeant Heath to equip the post at the far end of the garden with a strong steel wire such as is used in theaters for flying and levitation acts. This wire was to be just long enough to reach as far as the height of the balcony on this floor. And to it was attached the usual spring catch which fastens to the leather equipment worn by the performer. This equipment consists of a heavy cowhide vest resembling in shape and cut the old Ferris waist worn by young girls in pre-Victorian days, and even later. This afternoon Sergeant Heath brought such a leather vest—or what is technically known in theatrical circles as a 'flying corset'—to my apartment, and I put it on before I came here."

"This waistcoat, or corset," he said, "is worn under the actor's costume; and in my case I put on a loose tweed suit today so that the slightly protruding rings in front would not be noticeable."

"When I took Miss Beeton upstairs with me, I led her out into the garden and confronted her with her guilt. While she was protesting, I mounted the parapet, standing there with my back to her, ostensibly looking out over the city, as I had done last evening. In the semi-darkness I snapped the wire to the rings on the front of my leather vest without her seeing me do so. She came very close to me as she talked, but for a minute or so I was afraid she would not take advantage of the situation. Then, in the middle of one of her sentences, she lurched toward me with both hands outstretched, and the impact sent me over the parapet. It was a simple matter to swing myself over the balcony railing. I had arranged for the drawing-room door to be unlatched, and I merely disconnected the suspension wire, walked in, and appeared in the hallway. When Miss Beeton learned that I had witnessed to her act, as well as a photograph of it, she realized that the game was up."

THE END

This Memorial Day

by Lois J. Hurley

In Wallace's Farmer

THERE is something in the air on Memorial day that grips the heart. With lumps in our throats, we see the time-scarred Civil war veterans ride by, and wonder how many will be left in the ranks for another year. With our tears, we water the flowers on the graves of our soldier dead on Memorial day. We think of those who fell in the fray of all wars and are infinitely sad.

But, while we muse, a band sweeps down the street to a stirring martial air. The glorious stars and stripes float before our eyes. Our pulses quicken and we thrill through and through with patriotism. For the moment, we forget the sorrow and futility of war and the pitiful mounds in which our soldier boys are sleeping.

Truly, our emotions are at war on Memorial day. Then, as at no other time, we realize that our intellect is a mere atom afloat on a sea of feeling. Intelligence tells us that war never settled anything. Emotion tells us that when the band plays and the flag floats by, we can do no less than join in the parade and be the first to step forth for our country when we are challenged.

While we stand beside the heroes' graves and reflect, we should make a solemn resolve that, inasmuch as we are able, we shall see that "these dead shall not have died in vain." The lad in blue or olive drab would have fallen joyfully if he could have gone with the assurance that those at home would have their future safety assured, and that boys to be born after him would be spared the horror he had known on the battlefield.

They, dying, threw the torch to us. This Memorial day, let us resolve anew to hold it high and work for abiding peace in all nations.

Memorial Day Not Same

Date in All the States

WHILE May 30, Memorial day, is a legal holiday in most of the states, there are ten in which it is not, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. With the exception of New Mexico, where the day is nevertheless observed, these states are all in the old South. Most of them have memorial days of their own.

The date most commonly observed as Confederate Memorial day is April 26, a holiday in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi. May 10 is the Confederate Memorial day in North Carolina and Kentucky, the latter observing May 30 also. June 3, Jefferson Davis' birthday, is the Tennessee Memorial day, besides being observed for its own sake in the other southern states.

Lesson for May 30

THE REMAKING OF JACOB

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 28:16-22, 32:24-30.

GOLDEN TEXT—And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind. Romans 12:2.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jacob's Great Discovery.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Changed Jacob.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding One's Better Self.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Face to Face With God.

Front Page News! "Well-Known Crook Converted!" After years of deception, thievery, and all kinds of wickedness, Jacob, "the supplanter," had a transforming experience of the grace and power of God and became Israel—"a prince of God." That is indeed front-page news and the marvel of it all is that we may today proclaim the grace of God in Christ Jesus for the redemption of every one that believeth.

Memorial day is a most appropriate one for our lesson, for the first portion tells us of a memorial stone, and the last section tells of a great victory. We do well on this day to remember the days that are gone, to recall the heroic deeds of our valiant dead. It is right that we should honor them for victories rightly won and for a noble cause. But let us not fail to recognize that the great battles of life are those fought in the realm of the spirit and that the victories won there endure for all eternity. Every teacher of a class in the Bible school should with God's help endeavor to make this a day of blessed memory and victory in Christ for the boys and girls, or men and women of the class.

We consider today two experiences in the life of Jacob, both of which have their counterpart in the lives of many of God's children in our day.

I. A Vision and a Vow (Gen. 28:16-22).

Jacob met God. Have you met Him face to face? Have you had "such a revolutionary experience in some unexpected spot"? What a sacred place it has become in your life. Perhaps it was at mother's knee, or in a little crossroad church, or on a busy city street. God was there—you dealt with him—he blessed your soul—life was changed. Such may be the experience of each one of us. The place where Jacob had this experience had been known only as Luz. Now it became Bethel—"the house of God."

Spiritual experiences are not simply for our pleasure; they carry a real responsibility. Jacob recognized this and set up a memorial and made a vow. The depth of his purpose is revealed by the fact that it touched his earthly possessions.

The pledge of one-tenth to God is in accord with the Old Testament principle of the tithe. Many earnest believers regard the tithe as equally obligatory in our day. Others contend that it is an Old Testament principle only. Well, there is no need to differ too sharply on that point, for is it not clear that as children of God all that we have belongs to Him? Surely then we would not wish shamefacedly to admit that we give less than the Old Testament tithe. All that we have comes from His bountiful hand. He it is that gives "bread to eat and raiment to put on." Let us be cheerful (hilarious) givers of what he has entrusted to us, that his work on earth may be put forward.

II. A Struggle and a Victory (Gen. 32:24-30).

After varied experiences of both victory and defeat Jacob turns back to his own land. He hears of the approach of his brother Esau with 400 men. Before he meets him he spends a night alone. Whether it was in fear or in trust that he approached God on that night, we do not know. But we do read of the great struggle. It was more than a physical battle—real as that was—for here we have God wrestling with a weak and defeated, but proud man, seeking to bring him to the place where he will once for all "let go and let God" have his way with his life.

Into the night of struggle at Peniel have gone God's people in all the centuries, and lo, those who have submitted themselves to the mighty hand of God have come out as those that have "power with God and with men" (v. 28). Such an experience is the key to successful living and fruitful service for God. It is still true that "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble." (Jas. 4:6).

A Strong Arm

Give me the pure heart, O Lord, to feel Thy presence near me. Give me the clear mind that understands. Give me the stainless soul that shall return to Thee fearless when my time shall come. Ice-Box Cookies

1 pound butter
5 cupsful flour
1½ cupsful sugar
3 eggs
Dates and nuts to suit
Vanilla flavoring

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the eggs, one by one, beating the mixture meanwhile. Add the five cupsful of flour gradually while beating the mixture. Add the dates and nuts, which have been previously chopped into small bits. Add the flavoring.

Shape this into a roll. Put in the ice-box overnight. In the morning slice into thin layers, making the cookies, and bake in a moderate oven.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

—Mrs. Jas. Filler.
Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas, pain, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoup, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli." Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

News From Springfield

By Bernice T. Van der Vries,
Representative 7th Senatorial Dist.,
General Assembly of Illinois

The General Assembly seems near definite action on the question of a motor driver's license than at any time during the last three years. Although there is a division in the party in control of the state government as to whether the administration shall be in the hands of the Secretary of state or the State Highway Department when the matter finally came to vote on Wednesday the Secretary of State won out. The conference committee which had met in a number of sessions recommended administration by the Secretary of State and a license fee of fifty cents for a three-year period. The latter recommendation was an important one and designed to secure down state support. The session on Wednesday was a lively one ending in boos and cat calls. The subject will have another inning next week as a motion to reconsider preyailed. In the meantime roads will be held out as bait to members who failed to vote or who might be prevailed upon to change their minds.

Sentiment for a drivers' license is growing stronger every day in the urban sections of the state and the members of the General Assembly who block the passage of such a measure will undoubtedly find critical constituents 'back home' if the session ends without a drivers' license law.

The woman's eight hour bill which affects thousands of working women was reported out of the Industrial Affairs committee with recommendations for passage. A concession was made to the laundry industry in permitting overtime work twenty-four weeks in the year, in other words, for house cleaning periods. Proponents of the bill will attempt to have this provision removed from the bill on second reading while those who believe in a more flexible measure for all industries employing women will attempt to have the bill further amended.

"Soul and Body" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 23.

The Golden Text was, "Rejoice the soul of thy servant: for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul" (Psalms 86:4).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "O bless our God, ye people, and make the voice of his praise to be heard. Which holdeth our soul in life, and suffereth not our feet to be moved" (Psalms 66:8, 9).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Science reveals Spirit, Soul, as not in the body, and God as not in man but as reflected by man. The High school pupils and teachers enjoyed a trip to several places of interest on Monday May 24th. They visited the Shedd Aquarium, Adler Planetarium, Field Museum and the Rosenwald Museum of Science and Industry. Two main features of the trip were a lecture on astronomy in the Planetarium Chamber and going through the coal mine in the Rosenwald Museum.

The annual high school dinner was given Thursday evening, May 27th. At the dinner the class prophecy and will were read. After the dinner the students enjoyed a theatre party.

The high school picnic will be on June 4th and will be held in Palos Park. Eleanor Cox, Ruth Arnold, Philip Sippel and Norman Yunker are on the "eats" committee.

Dr. Belting and Mr. Vick from the State Department of Education at Springfield visited our school last Thursday.

Last Tuesday, May 18 the pupils in the Upper Grade Room, laid aside their school books and traveled to Chicago to visit some important work centers and to have a day of real pleasure. In spite of the heavy rain, everyone had a pleasurable and profitable day.

The party went directly to the stockyards where they were the guests of Swift and Company. Upon arrival, they found their guide waiting to conduct them through the great packing plant. First they visited the pork department, where they saw the killing of the hogs and dressing of the carcasses and later the curing of hams and bacon.

At the noon hour all were served a delicious lunch in the Swift Visitors Cafeteria.

After the lunch period, the guide conducted the party thru the mutton department, where they saw the killing of the sheep and then the dressing operation.

From Swift's the party drove to the Rosenwald Museum in Jackson, where again a guide was waiting. The first hour in the museum was spent in a trip thru the coal mine and seeing exhibits and moving pictures of how coal was formed. After that another hour was spent in seeing that they were quite loathe to leave when the time of departure arrived.

All the pupils and Miss Van Camp were pleased to have several interested friends join their group for the day. They were Mrs. Walter Yunker, Mrs. W. R. Schussler Jr., Mrs. George Gee, Mrs. Thomas Cooper and Mrs. Edw. Gee and son Edward. They wish also to extend their thanks and appreciation to Mrs. Edw. Gee, Mrs. W. R. Schussler and Mrs. Thomas Cooper for the use of their cars, when the bus failed to arrive.

This was the second such trip taken this year by this room, and all vote them the two most popular days of the school year.

School closes Friday June 4 with a picnic near the Gee Lake, to which all friends and patrons are invited.

Dorothy Arnold, Eleanor Knox, Buddy Cox and Martin Yunker of the upper grade room have perfect attendance for the entire school year.

Laverne and Betty Cannon in the primary room and Eugene Yunker in the intermediate room have perfect attendance for the year.

THE COUNTRY BOY

Down the country road
Where dust is rising high,
Comes a country boy;
Now he's passing by.

Fishing pole in hand
Dust beneath his feet;
Whistling as he comes
Down our country street.

Freckles on his face,
Less a few front teeth,
Of course we know he's on his way
To call for Bobby Reef.

Oh, they're going fishing
I hope they get a bite,
Just to be behind a tree
Would fill me with delight.
An original poem written by Jane Stegle, 6th grade.

Tell Him What You've Found to Be True

● Tell him of the value, educationally, he will derive from reading this noted feature writer's historical articles as they appear regularly in this paper. He will probably say: "Sure, I like history, Pop, but . . ." But too often it's ponderous and drained of the vitality that makes history the stirring story that it is. Then reveal to him the skill with which this man makes dramatic phases of his country's history read like lively fiction.

● Show him that Mr. Watson's articles sometimes digress to other fields of American interest—to popular science, sports, the fine arts, industry, literature—to developments that will MAKE history . . . but read like romance.

You can feel secure in this guidance of your child's reading because Elmo Scott Watson's articles always are authoritative and are based upon the most painstaking research. In addition to writing these special articles, Mr. Watson serves as an instructor in feature writing at Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University, and is co-author of a new book on the subject that has been adopted as a textbook by leading journalism schools throughout the nation.

The Birth of Our Constitution

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

America at this time begins a significant celebration—significant not only to her own people, but to all the world.

It is the 150th anniversary of the Federal Convention of 1787, which planned and wrote our Constitution.

From late in May until mid-September of that historic year, delegates from 12 of the original states met regularly in Philadelphia's famed Independence Hall to produce an historic document now known and honored wherever democracy lives.

What the men who wrote our great Constitution, and later its Bill of Rights, achieved, was important not alone to their own troubled period of history. It is profoundly important today.

By placing the power of government firmly and permanently in the hands of the people; by assuring political and religious freedom to all citizens, they established a form of government which still stands as a model.

In many other lands, kingdoms and empires have fallen. In certain other lands, Communism and Dictatorship—the twin foes of democracy—work their harsh tyrannies. But for generation after generation, under the safeguard of our Constitution, America has grown in size, in prestige and in strength, and has offered its people standards of liberty, security and well-being equalled by no other nation on earth.

That safeguard must be preserved.

The nation-wide observance which extends through the summer should be more than a formal ceremony. It should be a national rededication to the principles of liberty immortalized by the Founders in the historic Charter that has borne America to greatness.

Homerding Fans 18 As Tinley Wins 3-2

It was all Pat Homerding and Bennett, Sunday when Tinley eased out a 3-2 victory over the stubborn Blue Island Cardinals who seemed determined to halt the local's victory march.

Not only did Pat bat across the winning tally in the ninth but he was forced to set three Cardinal batters down via the strike out route in the closing frame to insure victory. Pat ran his season strike out total to 37 for three games as he whiffed 18 of the perplexed Cardinal hitters. The Cards garnered four singles off Homerding while his mates were touching Wensloff for eight. Both Cardinal runs resulted from misplays. Wensloff suffered a terrific onslaught of batted balls but received strong support afield to halt Tinley' rallies.

The situation looked dark for the Parkers in the early minutes of the contest. Both teams were scoreless for four innings when the Cards were presented with a run, the result of an overthrow. In the meanwhile Tinley's bats were silenced. Tinley bounced back in their half of the fifth and knotted the count. The eighth saw Tinley push over another run by virtue of Nielsen's single, Imhoff's line double and Hallahan's sacrifice fly. But the Cardinals came right back in their half of the eighth to tie the score on a passed ball. And then came that hectic ninth; Greco was out short to first, Cleveland sent a long fly to left center that Watson dropped as he backed to the fence and Cleveland pulled up at second. Bennett bounced out short to first, Cleveland moving to third; and then Pat lined a single over third for Tinley's third and winning marker.

The Cardinals opened the ninth with a bounder to third. But Greco left the throw get away from him and there was a man on second with none out. It was the that Homerding took matters in his own hands. The next three batters were set down in order via the strike out method. And Tinley managed to keep their slate clean still holding on to first place in the South Suburban League.

Next Sunday, May 30th Tinley will again be at home meeting the strong Palos Parkers. Also a non-league tilt is scheduled for Monday May 31 at home. Don't miss these games starting at 2:30 p. m. at Schmidt's field.

HARRY HARTZ TOOTING HIS "HORN" TO WIN FIRST PLACE HONORS IN 500-MILE GRIND

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Racer Ted Horn has only one worry in the 500-mile race—that his Hartz in the right place—the pits.

The driving days of the great Harry Hartz (above, right) are over, but he remains in the racing game as car owner and pit manager and dreams of another victory. He has nominated Horn (above, left), the heavy-pedaled, handsome wheelman from sunny California to drive the Hartz entry in the Silver Anniversary of the 500-mile race Monday, May 31.

Horn finished second to Louis Meyer in the 1936 gasoline derby, driving a race strictly according to pit schedule.

Hartz himself was a great second-finisher. He was second to Frank Lockhart in 1926; second to Tommy Milton in 1923; second to Jimmy Murphy in 1922.

In 1937, Hartz is tooting his Horn for the winner-take-all role.

Whale of a Problem for a New Jersey Town

The seaside community of Longport, N. J., was presented with an urgent problem when this 45-foot whale was washed ashore. The animal had been dead for some time so his carcass was decidedly obnoxious. The town had no derrick equipment large enough to handle the mammal, so it was cut up and burned in sections.

Bedtime Story for Children

JUMPER THE HARE CANNOT FIND THE TRACKS

JUMPER THE HARE had meant to go to the place deep in the Green Forest where Peter Rabbit had seen those strange, great big tracks, and see them for himself the very night after Peter had told him about them. But there was no moon that night, and you know it is very, very dark deep in the Green Forest when there is no moon. Of course, it would be hard work; very hard work, indeed, to find those tracks in the dark. So Jumper wisely decided not to go until the next night. But the next day and the next night it rained, and it is very uncomfortable going about in the wet unless you have a waterproof coat like Jerry Muskrat or Billy Mink or Little Joe Otter. So Jumper the Hare made himself as comfortable as he could under a thick hemlock tree and watched the rain fall and the snow melt, and tried to be as patient as he could.

When it stopped raining there was very little snow left. "It's of no use to go now," thought Jumper, "because the snow has melted, and, of course, the tracks melted, too. I guess I will have to wait for some more snow."

So he waited and waited, but, you see, it was almost spring time. Every day Peter Rabbit came up to find out if Jumper had been to look for the tracks, and every day he was disappointed. Of course, he

Short Swagger Coat

The short, flaring swagger coat can be worn with dresses or suits. This one, of a red, white and blue diagonal plaid tweed from Linton, is shown over a white dress of pure spun silk in a linen weave. ought not to have been, for he knew very well that it would have been a waste of time for Jumper to go way off there to the deepest part of the Green Forest to look for tracks when there was no snow; but Peter thought that there might be a little patch left with a track in it—there just might be, you know.

And every day Peter teased Jumper to tell him who he thought might have made those tracks. But Jumper wouldn't. No, sir, he wouldn't. He would just shake his head and say: "When I see those tracks myself and know for sure, then I will tell you, and not before, Cousin Peter." and Peter had to be content with this.

Then one day it snowed, a lovely light, fluffy snow, a beautiful snow in which to make tracks. Jumper decided to go that very night, for the snow might melt the next day. He invited Peter to go along. But Peter shook his head.

"No," said he. "No, I won't go this time. It's too far, and besides, Cousin Jumper, your legs are so much longer than mine that I never, never could keep up with you. I've seen those great, strange tracks once, and I guess that will do."

"All right," replied Jumper, and hid a smile. You see, he knew that while it was true that Peter couldn't keep up with him if he ran fast, that wasn't the real reason. He knew perfectly well that Peter was afraid, but he was too polite to say so to Peter. So off he started for the deepest part of the Green Forest, the part which Peter had found so still and lonesome. But Jumper didn't mind this as Peter had. You see, he was used to it in the Great Woods where he had been born and had lived before coming down to the Green Forest. In fact, he rather liked it. It made him think of his old home. You know, very few of us are afraid of the things we are used to. It is strange things that frighten us. And that is just the way it was with Peter Rabbit.

All that night Jumper the Hare hopped this way and hopped that way through the deepest part of the Green Forest, but not once did he find one of the strange tracks that Peter Rabbit had told about. "He must have seen them," thought Jumper, "because he told about them just as I remember seeing them in the Great Woods. He certainly must have seen them."

At last he gave it up and started back for the place where he had left Peter Rabbit. Peter was waiting for him. "Did you find them?" cried Peter as soon as he saw Jumper.

"No," said Jumper. "I didn't find them. Tell me about them again, Peter." And Peter did.

First Aid to the Ailing House

—By— Roger B. Whitman

KEEPING YOUR EYE ON YOUR HOUSE

A YOUNG married couple, who had just moved into the house they had built, were naturally very proud of it, and had every intention of keeping it in the best of condition. They asked me for suggestions; wanted to know how they could best keep off deterioration. I said that the first thing for them to do was to familiarize themselves with all parts of the house; to come to know it in every little detail. They should learn the appearance of each part of the house all over, so that any change anywhere—a crack in a plaster wall or a timber, the backing out of nails, the appearance of corrosion on a plumbing pipe, or anything else, would be immediately noticeable.

Then they should get into the habit of making a detailed inspection of the house every so often; once a month, say. They might begin with the attic, and work down to the last far corner of the cellar. Anything that began to go wrong would instantly be noticed—even so small a thing as the first cracking of putty around the outside of a window frame.

The beginning of deterioration is trifling—some little thing that seems of no importance. But if that beginning is recognized, and something is done to correct it, deterioration can be put off almost indefinitely.

Cedar Closets and Moths.

It seems to be the general belief that a cedar closet or a cedar chest is a guarantee against damage by moths to anything within. As many people have learned to their sorrow, this is not the case. It is true that moths dislike the odor of aromatic red cedar; but it is also true that the odor of cedar disappears as its oils evaporate. There is a strong natural odor in a freshly built cedar closet, but even then the effect is not deadly to moths. It is only repellent. The great advantage of a well-built cedar closet or chest lies in its being tight; in having no holes or openings by which moths could enter. This is important because moths seek dark places in which to lay their eggs. Moth worms will develop from eggs in a cedar closet just as they will anywhere else. Safety requires that everything stored in such a closet should be completely free from moth eggs and worms. For the surest protection, clothes and anything else to be stored away for any length of time should first be dry-cleaned. This process destroys moth eggs and worms, and the odor that persists is repellent to moths in the flying stage.

THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis
© Public Ledger, Inc.

IN THIS day and age of hustle and bustle, it is indeed unusual to find the man or woman who will let nothing interfere with periods in which the mind is deliberately cleared of turmoil and permitted to reflect calmly yet constructively upon the deeper purposes of life. You will recognize such an individual, however, or one who at least is such at heart, by the second finger about to be analyzed.

The Reflective Finger of Saturn. The untrained hand analyst may find it sometimes difficult to differentiate between this type of the Over-logical Finger of Saturn.

Like the overlogical type, this finger is notable in its length and prominence of the joints. The difference is discovered in a better and more symmetrical contour, with a broader and more shapely nail tip. While the overlogical type has a tendency to incline toward the forefinger, the reflective second finger is straight or nearly so, and with the hand extended wide is found with fairly wide and equal spaces between it and the first and third fingers.

The possessor of this finger of Saturn not only employs sound reflective foresight to good purpose, but also is of open mind in receiving and responding to the ideas of other minds.

Early Sheffield Plate

Early Sheffield is most valuable for reasons other than its age. The silver coating is much thicker and its style simpler, though occasionally a little clumsy. So lavish were the smiths with their silver in the early period that, more than a century and a half later, hardly any copper can be seen at all in the old pieces, while in those made later it sometimes is more evident than the remaining silver.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building
Washington, D. C.

Washington.—The nation is continuing to witness labor disturbances of an exceedingly serious character. Many persons thought when the big sit-down strikes in the automobile industry were settled without serious bloodshed that we were on the way out of labor trouble in this country. The feeling in this regard had some confirmation when the great United States Steel corporation reached an agreement by which John L. Lewis and his faction of organized labor was recognized as the sole bargaining agency on wages for the greatest single unit of steel.

Unhappily, those circumstances were not indicative of an end. They did not presage peace between labor and employers. The conflict is continuing and, I believe, holds the elements of much more danger than we have yet experienced. Because of the conditions that are now apparent and those which happen to lie ahead, the recent speech by Edward McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, becomes both interesting and significant. Mr. McGrady, it will be remembered, made a speech at Atlantic City, New Jersey, in which he said boldly to the members of the garment workers union that if labor and capital both are to survive, there must be a sincere effort on the part of each group to understand the problems of the other. He reduced the differences between employer and employee to the simple formula, namely, that representatives of each side, if they expect to do justice by their own people, must sit down at a table and talk things over honestly.

Now, the Assistant Secretary's interest in labor cannot be questioned. He is a former official of organized labor. During his term as Assistant Secretary he has been exceedingly active and earnest in his attempts to solve labor problems and bring about industrial peace. His efforts at conciliation cover the range from the bitter maritime strike on the west coast to the more or less inconsequential sit-down strike of a hundred employees in a hotel here in Washington.

So, it seems thoroughly fair to assume that any advice given by Mr. McGrady must include absolute justice for the workers.

Mr. McGrady believes that the irresponsible practices which lead employers to treat labor representatives as agitators are due to ignorance. On the other hand, you cannot help reading between the lines of his recent speech an inference at least that he regards some labor representatives as quite as irresponsible as some employers. His view in this regard is indicated by the stress, the emphasis, which he laid upon the importance of discipline among union members together with his assertion that labor must recognize the sanctity of its contract with the employers just as much as the employers must recognize the validity of their contract with labor.

Mr. McGrady pointed out what losses result from shut downs or strikes and declared that the efficiency in production, which the country has a right to expect from industry, cannot be achieved unless labor and capital work together.

Further, the Assistant Secretary observed that "responsible labor leadership" must place efficiency and elimination of waste and loss among its objectives if organized labor is to achieve a worthwhile goal.

Mr. McGrady's exposition of his conception of relations between employer and employee comes as something of a ray of hope to the great masses of American citizens who are neither employers of labor nor members of labor unions. I have said in these columns before and I repeat that the tragedy of conflict between employer and employee, organized capital versus organized labor, lies in the fact that there are millions of people in the role of innocent bystanders. They are the individuals who suffer most. It is inevitable that they must suffer because in a nation whose commerce and industry is as complex as ours, every time capital or labor abuses the powers entrusted into its hands, those who are not members of either group pay a penalty which is not possible of measurement.

This characteristic of life obtains not alone in the United States. It exists in every civilized country to the extent that that country is industrialized.

There is no better evidence of the truth of the statements I have just made than an incident which occurred a few days ago in the house of commons in London. Stanley Baldwin, prime minister of England, and one of the most powerful men among foreign statesmen today, called attention to "a dark cloud" which he saw on the economic horizon of time.

Mr. Baldwin was speaking to his colleagues in the house of commons something in the nature of a valedictory because he is soon to retire from public office after three decades of service to his government.

I happened to have had the privilege of close contact with Mr. Baldwin when he headed his country's debt refunding commission to the United States more than fifteen years ago. From that association I learned to respect his mental capacity and his ability to foresee coming events. When he says, therefore, that labor and capital must be honest with each other, I cannot help feeling that Mr. Baldwin foresees the possibility of bloody clashes and unsound results in the offing, conditions that will flow from the abuse of power.

Mr. Baldwin told the house of commons that: "You will find in our modern civilization, that just as war has changed from being a struggle between professional armies with civilians comparatively uninterested in it, so the weapons of industrial warfare have changed from arms that affected comparatively small localized business into weapons that affected directly those who have no concern whatever with the issue except perhaps natural sympathy with their own class."

The British prime minister added that, under such circumstances, "the one thing we must pray for, not only in our statesmen, but also in trade union leaders and masters, is wisdom." It seems to me that Mr. Baldwin's admonition can be uttered from high places in our American government with a value just as important as he gave to his words. The fact that Assistant Secretary McGrady has been the only public official to speak so frankly and so honestly is comforting, but it is to be deplored that he alone has spoken.

Since there are ominous signs in a class struggle that unfortunately has been promoted in this country, it seems to me the attention of the people ought to be directed somewhat more to conditions in congress. Some months ago I wrote in these columns my fear that the current session of congress was going to leave a rather dull record for having done nothing. Thus far, my fears have been justified to the fullest.

Congress went into session in the first week of January. To date, therefore, it has been in session five months. Its record of accomplishments includes passage of four appropriation bills, providing money for federal government departments; the Guffey-Vinson little NRA coal law and the cash and carry neutrality law. I do not see how anybody can be enthusiastic about those accomplishments. Passage of appropriation bills is mere routine usually because in most cases they involve no controversial question at all. Passage of the neutrality act likewise was an action about which there could be little dispute even though there may have been plenty of grounds for disagreement over the type of law enacted. That leaves, therefore, only the Guffey-Vinson coal bill over which there could have been much delay in house or senate debate. All of this makes the picture look even worse for congressional leadership.

There is talk already about adjournment of congress as soon as hot weather strikes Washington—and the temperatures can get very high and unpleasant. While this undecurrent of talk is not yet in an important volume, it emphasizes the fact that there is a growing body of legislators who see no possibility of accomplishing anything worthwhile in the current session.

But what are the reasons? Having gone rather thoroughly into this situation, I think there are two factors to be considered. One is the lack of capacity of the leadership among both Democrats and Republicans and the other is traceable to the White House. President Roosevelt for four years has told congress what to do and to that extent has destroyed the initiative of the legislators as a body and now that some members want to reassert the power of congress, the President's organized spokesmen appear not to know what to do.

It may be said that the immediate cause of the failure of congressional leadership to get much of the legislative program out of the way in five months is the controversy resulting from Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to add six justices of his own choosing to the United States Supreme court. That statement, in my opinion, is only partially true. There are many senators and representatives, otherwise loyal to the President, who now feel that the court re-organization plan cannot be put through. But those spokesmen thus far have not advised the President frankly of their views and in consequence the court bill is still in the way. To that extent, then, the legislative leadership has lacked courage and Mr. Roosevelt has remained adamant, which possibly charges him with some responsibility in the legislative stalemate.

Governor Horner will join the educators and citizens in paying tribute to Blackburn college and to President William M. Hudson and Florence Barclay Hudson, his wife. They are completing a quarter of a century of educational service. More than 100 graduates will receive junior college diplomas at the exercises. Student body comprises 285 boys and girls from a score of states.

The curfew whistle will not blow in Kirkland any more. The village board voted to discontinue blowing the fire whistle at 7:45 o'clock winter evenings and 8:45 in the summer months to warn children on the streets to make for their homes, a practice of many years.

In the final round of the contest in oratory in the national speech tournament in Jacksonville, Howard Crossman of Minneapolis was first, Warren White of Oklahoma City second, and William Case of Duquoin, third, and Bob Johnson of Lincoln, fourth.

AROUND the HOUSE

Maple Oatmeal Cookies—Two and a half cups fine oatmeal, one cup maple syrup, one quarter cup water, two and a half cups flour, one cup shortening, one teaspoon soda. Boil water and syrup together, add soda, then shortening. Cool slightly. Add to dry ingredients and allow the mixture to cool thoroughly before rolling out.

Using Skim-Milk—Skim-milk is excellent for milk puddings, providing a dessertspoonful of finely-grated suet is added to replace the missing fat.

Economic Ironing—When ironing dispense with the ironing blanket and fold all the large things flat on the table, forming a "pad." On top of this I iron the small things, and when they are done, I find that the large things are quite nicely pressed.

Better Bread—Home-made bread is lighter and keeps moist longer when mixed with skim-milk instead of water.

Cooking Cauliflower—To prevent it breaking while cooking, wrap loosely in muslin.

Bacon and Macaroni—Break two ounces of macaroni into small pieces and throw into quickly-boiling salted water. Simmer until tender. Fry two ounces of streaky bacon cut into small pieces, then drain the macaroni and add it to the bacon. Add seasoning, one-half ounce of butter, and a scrape of nutmeg, and stir over a low heat until the macaroni is brown. Turn on to a hot dish and serve with dry toast.

Making a Cushion—A useful flat cushion can be made from an old blanket. Fold it carefully to the size required, taking care that it is quite smooth and then secure the "layers" together with a few strong stitches. Slip it into a cover made from any pretty piece of material. These cushions are very useful when you want to make a chair higher, and are comfortable and firm to sit upon.

Soft-Boiled Eggs—When soft-boiling eggs, put them in boiling water, boil for one minute and turn off flame, leaving eggs in the water for another four minutes. This prevents them from hardening and saves fuel.

Ladders in the Hosiery—Place your silk stocking over a glass tumbler when repairing a ladder. The light shows up the cross-threads, which can then be picked up easily with a fine steel crochet hook.

The public schools and some of our colleges have taught the masses just enough to make them discontented.—Chase S. Osborn.

THE GREATEST TIRE EVER MADE TO SELL AT THESE LOW PRICES

COME in, examine a cross section cut from a Firestone Standard Tire, then examine the deep-cut, non-skid tread and see how much extra value you get. You will quickly understand why more and more car owners are equipping their cars with these tires. You will agree that never before have you seen so much quality, so much built-in mileage and so much safety at so little cost. You will find the Firestone Standard Tire is made safer from blowouts with the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping. The patented construction of two extra layers of Gum-Dipped Cords under the tread protect against punctures and bind the tread and cord body into one inseparable unit. The wider, flatter tread with more rubber on the road will give you longer mileage and greater protection against skidding. Firestone is able to give you all these extra values because Firestone Standard Tires are built in such large quantities that great savings are made in production.

Don't drive another day on thin worn tires that are dangerous and may cause an accident. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign by letting your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply & Service Store equip your car with Firestone Standard Tires—First Grade Quality at Low Cost.

DO YOU KNOW
THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?
THAT a million more were injured?
THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to unsafe tires?

Above is a section cut from a smooth worn tire, which shows the non-skid tread protection worn off. Tires in this condition are more liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

Length of Suez Canal

The actual length of the Suez canal is about 100 miles, a little more or a little less, depending upon the way in which it is measured. Reference books do not agree as to its exact length. The discrepancy lies in the fact that it may be measured from the southernmost end of Port Said harbor to the northeastern shore of Suez bay at Port Tewfik, or from the De Lesseps statue north of Port Said to the anchorage in the middle of Suez bay.

LOWER COST— BETTER PAINT!

Lower cost... because LOWE BROTHERS BLUE STAR LIQUID PAINT wears longer than paints that are ordinarily sold at equal price. Better paint... because BLUE STAR LIQUID PAINT PER GALLON brushes on smoothly, hides well, and covers a surprising amount of surface per gallon for a medium-priced paint—even more surface than many paints selling at considerably higher prices.

When you come in, ask for Lowe Brothers FREE new, illustrated book, "Practical Hints on Painting and Decorating."

WATKINS NEW IMPROVED SPRAY DOES A BETTER JOB - - - and at a Lower Cost!

Watkins Fly Spray has been recognized for a long time as one of the best on the market. Now it's better than ever before. You get more for your money, because it gives a faster knock-down, a greater kill and will repel flies for a longer time. Test after test has shown it to be much superior to anything I have sold before. It is clean and odorless, will not gum up the hair or hide of your cows and can be used in the barn or milkhouse without tainting the milk. It is so clean that it can be used in the house, without staining or discoloring curtains, rugs, or draperies. Buy Watkins Fly Spray and you get two in one, for you can use it both in the house and the barn.

It's economical, too, because many dairy men report that they have to buy only half as many gallons of Watkins Fly Spray to get the same results. It's cheaper because it goes further.
